

Andrew Trotter MD, MPH

Infectious Disease Fellow, Division of Geographic Medicine and Infectious Disease
Tufts Medical Center and Affiliated Hospitals, Boston, MA

Dr Trotter is a fellow in infectious disease at Tufts Medical Center and affiliated hospitals in the Boston area. His medical training was at Loyola University Chicago Stritch School of Medicine, residency training at the University of Illinois at Chicago and he received his Masters in Public Health at the University of Illinois, School of Public Health. His MPH thesis centered on the design and implementation of a rapid oral universal HIV screening program in an emergency department. He has been involved in clinical work in Bolivia, India and Nepal and in the US. He has been involved in HIV and public health projects focusing on the health and wellness of underserved urban populations. His research interests include clinical infectious disease both in the US and in an international setting, public health and the health of underserved and marginalized communities.